Experience Overview

Dan Linsky has been involved in the carbon and renewable energy industries since 2003. At ClimeCo, he oversees all voluntary carbon sales, coordinating strategies and managing carbon offset inventories for this growing market. A recognized industry leader, Dan has developed a trusted sustainability network. Through market education and planning initiatives, he helps companies align carbon offset use with their sustainability goals. He works with corporations, organizations and events to offset their greenhouse gas emissions.

Prior to joining ClimeCo, Dan served as marketing analyst and inside sales manager for Parabel, a biomass-to-fuel start-up. Previously, at DrivingGreen, his branding and consumer education efforts led to national media recognition of the retail carbon offset company and website application under his direction.
